

Nineteenth-Century French Studies

FALL 2006 / VOLUME 35 NUMBER 1

Sculpture et poésie: Sculpture and Literature, 1789-1859

edited by L. Cassandra Hamrick and Suzanne Nash

Contents

Foreword	9
Introduction	11
I. SCULPTURE AND POETIC SPACE BEFORE 1859 LA SCULPTURE ET L'ESPACE POÉTIQUE AVANT 1859
Michel Brix Esthétique néo-classique et romantisme	20
Isabelle Leroy-Jay Lemaistre Beau comme l'antique, vrai comme la nature	34
Jean Starobinski André Chénier parmi les statues	50
Jean-Marie Roulin Chateaubriand, ou les espaces de la sculpture	72
Michele Hannoosh Delacroix and Sculpture	93
L. Cassandra Hamrick Baudelaire et la sculpture ennuyeuse de son temps	108

II. TRANSLATING SCULPTURE INTO POETIC FORM
L'ART DE TRADUIRE LA SCULPTURE EN FORME POÉTIQUE

David Scott	130
Tensions dynamiques: Le rapport sculpture/poétique en France, 1829-1859
Rosemary Lloyd	149
Lire la pierre: Pouvoir politique et sexuel dans la sculpture littéraire du XIX ^e siècle
Wendy Nolan Joyce	164
Sculpting the Modern Muse: Auguste Clésinger's Femme piquée par un serpent
Suzanne Nash	187
Casting Hugo into History
Stamos Metzidakis	204
Poétique de la ligne: Autour des colonnes sculptées
Patrizia Lombardo	224
Stendhal et l'idéal moderne
Illustrations	245
Abstracts	290
Index	295

Contributors

Michel Brix is Maître de recherches at the Université de Namur

Isabelle Leroy-Jay Lemaistre is Conservateur en chef, Département des Sculptures at the Musée du Louvre

Jean Starobinski is Professeur honoraire de langue et littérature françaises modernes at the Université de Genève

Jean-Marie Roulin is Professeur de langue et littérature françaises at the Université Jean Monnet, Saint-Etienne

Michele Hannoosh is Professor of French at the University of Michigan

Cassandra Hamrick is Professor of French at Saint Louis University

David Scott is Professor of French at the University of Dublin, Trinity College

Rosemary Lloyd is Rudy Professor of French at Indiana University

Wendy Nolan Joyce is Lecturer and Visiting Fellow at the School of Language Studies, Australian National University

Suzanne Nash is Professor of French at Princeton University

Stamos Metzidakis is Professor of French and Comparative Literature at Washington University

Patrizia Lombardo is Professeur de langue et de littérature françaises modernes et de littérature comparée at the Université de Genève

Editors

L. Cassandra Hamrick is well known as an expert on the relationship between literature and the visual arts in nineteenth-century France, having authored many studies in that field. Currently, she is collaborating on the preparation of Théophile Gautier's artistic Salons as a part of a new edition of the author's Œuvres complètes, to be published by Champion.

Suzanne Nash is the author of Les Contemplations of Victor Hugo: Allegory of the Creative Process, Paul Valéry's Album de vers anciens: A Past Transfigured, and essays on nineteenth- and twentieth-century poetry and fiction. She has edited Home and Its Dislocations in Nineteenth-Century France, and co-edited Hugo et l'Histoire.